Many out of town guests attended.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Beauty Checks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have.

See Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming that Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal flow, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter, that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, yellow look, dull eyes, bloated, coated tongue, head aches, a listless, no good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Tens of thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF
Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp—At Once.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it then you destroy it entirely. To do this just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid acetone from any drug store (this is all you will need) apply it at night when retiring, rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and then for four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it. No matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you value your hair, you should get rid of dandruff at once, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only makes the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it itchy, stings, dandruff, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it—Adv.

Stenlight at it. There is no use at all "beating around the bush." We might as well cut with it first as last. We want you to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is a sure cure for all coughs. There is no reason so far as we can see why you should not do so, especially if you are troubled by it. It has gained a world wide reputation, and people everywhere speak of it in the highest praise. It is for sale by all.

DEATHS OF THE DAY

J. Alex Thompson.
J. Alex Thompson, well known in Connellsville, and a brother of J. J. Thompson, editor of the Daily News, died yesterday at his home in Chicago, death being caused from a general breakdown in health. Funeral Friday afternoon from the family residence with interment in Chicago.

Mr. Thompson was born in Indiana Pa. 53 years ago, a son of J. M. and Isabelle Thompson. His father died in 1884. He was a civil engineer and was employed in his early age on the construction of the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Troughgheeny railroad, having headquarters at Connellsville. Prior to his illness he was superintendent of the concrete department of the Illinois Steel Company in Chicago. He had been a resident of Chicago for the past 10 years, in addition to his widow who, Miss Lydia Squires of Allegheny, and a brother, J. J. Thompson, he is survived by his mother, past 80 years old, of Indiana.

Mrs. John A. Downs.
Mrs. John A. Downs, a well known resident of Connellsville, died this morning at the McKeesport General Hospital, following an operation which she underwent on last Thursday. She was apparently getting along very nicely until Monday, when her condition was pronounced serious. Monday night she rallied and more favorable reports were received here yesterday morning by members of the family. Last night another message came stating that there were no hopes for her recovery. Her husband who has been at the hospital since the operation returned home this morning, while the body, accompanied by her son, Clyde W. Downs, will arrive here this afternoon on Baltimore & Ohio train No. 18, and will be removed to the family residence on Washington avenue by Funeral Director C. G. Mitchell. Notice of funeral later.

Mrs. Downs was born in Franklin township and spent virtually all her life on a farm. Her maiden name was Rittenhouse. She resided in South Union township at one time and several years ago moved to Connellsville from Franklin township. She united with the Lutheran Church at this place, and was highly respected by her wide circle of friends who will regret to learn of her death. In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Clyde W. Downs, Connellsville, William B. Downs, Dunbar, and a brother, John Rittenhouse, who resides on the old Rittenhouse homestead in Franklin township. One grandson, John Rittenhouse, is a student at the University of Michigan.

Funeral of Mrs. Pickett.
Rev. J. L. Prouditt, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Edward W. Pickett, held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence at Brookvale. The services were impressive and were largely attended.

Appropriate music was rendered by Miss Martha Eaton and Mildred Miller. Six grandsons served as pallbearers. Interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

New Manager.
Those of our citizens who are fond of the billiard game will be highly pleased to learn that Mr. Charles McCourt has been engaged as manager of Mulford's Billiard Hall.

Mr. McCourt comes to Connellsville highly recommended as a capable and courteous gentleman whose fame as a Pittsburgh representative in the Interstate Billiard League is well known among lovers of the game. Patrons of Mulford's will now have an opportunity to witness some remarkable demonstrations of skill in pocket and three cushion billiards as Mr. McCourt is one of the best players in the country. Billiard playing is highly thought of as a gentlemanly accomplishment, and Connellsville players are fortunate in having the privilege of indulging in this pastime under the exceptionally pleasant conditions that prevail at Mulford's Hall, which is one of the most elegantly equipped in the East, not even excepting the large elites. It is confidently expected that this combination will result in much additional interest in the game here—Adv.

For Careful Depositors.
Banking service of the highest efficiency, progressive management, taken together with positive security for all deposits, make this bank an ideal institution for careful depositors, who regard safety as the prime essential of banking. We invite the accounts of prudent people, who appreciate unquestioned safety and complete service. The Citizens National Bank of Connellsville, 135 Pittsburgh street—Adv.

Card of Thanks.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bottomley of South Connellsville desire to thank their many kind friends for their aid and comfort extended them during the illness and death of their beloved daughter, Katherine May Bottomley. Especially do they desire to thank the Sunday school of the South Connellsville Evangelical Church and all others who sent floral tributes—Adv.

Norris Heads Board.
The official board of the Christian Church met Monday night in the church and reorganized by selecting the following officers for the ensuing year: Chairman of the board Robert Norris; vice chairman, W. H. Shawman; secretary, W. D. Colburn. Robert Norris will appoint the different committees.

Veterans to Sup.
The Union Veteran Legion and William T. Kurtz Post No. 104 Grand Army of the Republic, will celebrate their anniversary Day Thursday, April 2, with a stag supper in W. F. Clark's office. Talks will be given by old veterans and a most enjoyable evening is anticipated.

Son at Bachelor Home.
Word has been received here of the arrival of a baby boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gray Buer in Williamsburg, Pa. Buer was formerly Miss Marie Wilson daughter of J. D. Wilson, of East Fairview avenue.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND

Vinol for Run-Down People.
If any one person should know the value of medicines it is the druggist who dispenses them and from our experience we want to say if people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious and liver and iron tonic without oils at this season of the year, we would not be able to supply the demand for this blood tonic.

This is because Vinol is a combination of the two most world famous tonics, namely the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil without the oil and iron for the blood.

Vinol tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, promotes healthful sleep and a normal appetite.

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women should try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be refunded if it does not help you. Vinol is sold in West Side by J. J. Hargrave, druggist, and in the city by J. J. Hargrave and Hargrave's, 100 S. 3rd St. We guarantee it.

PHOTOGRAPHS

PHOTOGRAPHS, April 1.—On Monday a group of friends and neighbors of Mrs. J. J. Hargrave, druggist, gathered on the steps of his home to take a group photograph. CALAMITY YAKS.

Our ex-official but none the less esteemed contemporary, The News, should take some of its advice and quit mixing business with politics. It has been doing this for some time. The Baltimore & Ohio has not as yet joined in the wholesale laying off of men, nor indulged in a publicity campaign to this effect. We hope it will not, if it only possesses it so in patience that freight rate increase will eventually be granted, following which the necessity for such calamity as one road, emanating from the Pennsylvania and New York Central, will hardly be necessary.

While the editor was writing this column the Baltimore & Ohio management for standing up for the Democratic administration at any cost to the stockholders of the company. President Daniel Whitney has written this statement to the Interstate Commerce Commission in the hearing up on the application of the railroad for increased freight rates: "It should be a crime for any railroad when the net earnings from railroad operations were so small that a company was unable to continue to maintain fair returns upon the property, thus jeopardizing the future of railroad securities. Those who hold our securities would consider that as a crime. It also would be a crime for workingmen if they should be deprived of their positions not because of a lack of need for their services but because of inability of employers to pay wages. As I conceive it all these conditions of crime or of approaching crime are at hand in full measure. Three or four years ago, we based our application for increased rates upon what we considered to be a tendency. Today it is not a question of tendency, it is a question of fact. The News is unfortunate in its witness as well as its references."

THE PANAMA FLEEDO.

President Wilson has pushed the Panama Canal tolls bill through the House and the substantial majority given the measure in that body indicate that it will pass the Senate. The question is not a party one in a strict sense. Opinion upon it has been somewhat divided even in the Congress. The Baltimore Platform, however, declared in favor of free passage through the canal for American coastwise vessels, and so far as platforms go the Democratic party was committed in that policy.

But President Wilson, who has developed into something of a party boss himself, recently announced that the Baltimore Platform in this particular respect didn't suit him, and that he proposed to change it. He was not President when this plank was written. The Secretary of State is in command. It is the right of the Captain of the Ship to issue orders and of the President of the United States to have an office. Both of these rights were recognized in the House in spite of the passionate pleas of disappointed ambitions like Clark and Underhill.

It should be understood, however, that Democratic Platforms are no longer binding on the Democratic party. The reason for this is the reason President Wilson urged the President's primary. He expects to abolish national platforms with national conventions. Platform pledges are going to the New Freedom.

HENRY KRUG.

The intelligence of the death of Henry Krug, formerly an extensive lumbering operator at Krug, now Kendall, Maryland, will come as a shock to a large circle of friends in Fayette and Somerset counties. Henry Krug was a stout, physical nature and a child at heart. Though he sometimes tried to conceal it, he overflowed with the milk of human kindness. His creed was the Brotherhood of Man and he so loved his fellow that his name will be written in shining letters high at the top of the list.

The Beaver county Wilson who got the appointment as United States Marshal for Western Pennsylvania didn't keep the job very long. Woodrow is willing to confer the enemies of "Mitt" Palmer if it requires the sacrifice of all the Pennsylvania Wilsons.

The Barefoot Boys have an many promises out for the Fairbanks post-office that the Republican postmaster can't get rid of his job.

The moulders of public sentiment make some very poor work.

The Dawson community wants the full benefit of the Western Maryland extension. The latter practically ends in the Dickerson Run yards and engine houses, so that the people down that way have their demand upon business as well as sentiment, and the demand is so well based that we have an idea it will be granted.

In at least one respect Democratic politics resemble British politics. Both are at present mighty uncertain.

When our own "Biddle" Mitchell's sleuthing goes crime surrenders and checks itself back.

The Pennsylvania railroad has dropped ten more passenger trains; and it isn't refusing any real business, either.

March went out very much like March.

Jim Stauffer's department of high ways has maintained the spring cleaning movement.

We are buying the water works again.

Forrest was evidently a tough proposition. If the siege had lasted much longer there wouldn't have been much of either army left.

The water works enthusiasts are crowding the city authorities.

Better and faster progress is always made by doing one thing at a time.

April opened up the shower season promptly.

On this day we look upon the fat pocketbook lying carelessly on the sidewalk with dark suspicion.

The April joke was not on Woodrow, nicknamed Thomas.

Death is shooting out the shining lights with a galling gun.

Looking Backward.

News of the Past Condensed from the Files of The Courier.

WEEK OF APRIL 4, 1884.

The Courier office is destroyed by fire, but the paper is issued in single sheet form. First number being put forth from the Uniontown Standard office through courtesy of Editor John S. Rittenour.

Coke shipments last week aggregated over 200 in excess of the week previous. The Coke Syndicate has already advanced the price of coke. Prices are: furnace coke, $1.10; foundry coke, $1.25. To back up this increase 15% of the ovens in the pool have been ordered to shut down.

A large 7000 pump has been placed in the Monongahela mines and the work of pumping them dry preparatory to starting the works again has been commenced.

Dr. E. T. White has bought the Hammill property, paying $1,000 for it.

"Nate" Kiser of Uniontown has been offered position to play with the Baltimore baseball club at a salary of $1,000 a season.

"Doc" White and "Jim" Moore do the first trout fishing of the season. Their catch was 22.

B. T. Coughenour has sold his Bullskin township farm of 50 acres to J. S. Detweiler for $75,000.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 1894.

Detailed report of the coke trade for the week ending Saturday, March 24, shows a total of 17,513 ovens of which 11,841 are active and 5,672 are idle, with an estimated production of 1,121 tons.

Shipments for the week aggregated 5,895 cars, as follows: To Pittsburgh, 2,047 cars, to points west, 2,544 cars, to points east, 1,303 cars. This was the net decrease of 20 cars compared with the shipments of the week previous.

Coke prices are quoted as follows: Furnace coke, $1; foundry coke, $1.15; crushed coke, $1.40.

Coke production is again greater than the demand. The output was 20 cars less yet the production shows an increase of about 2,000 tons. The operators have more stock coke on their yards than for some months past. Car supply is ample.

L. C. Watt, yard boss at the Redstone works, and W. J. O'Connell, yard boss at Lehigh, are considered the best runners of foundry coke in the region.

Congressman Sipe recommends G. W. Semans to be postmaster at Uniontown.

Summer weather is succeeded by a blizzard. The fruit crop is badly frozen. Apples, peaches and cherries thought to be entirely destroyed. Apples and late fruit are all right.

The jury in the case of John Wilkey against the Cambria Iron Company for damages alleged to have been sustained to his property when pillars were removed in the company's mine at Morrell returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $1,485. He asked $50,000.

New state line road to Morgantown is completed and first through train from West Virginia town to Pittsburgh.

Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers hold its fourth annual ball in Wythe Hall.

New Haven holds special election and decides that special tax for light and water expenses shall not be levied. This means that the town will have to do without street lights.

Connellsville operators ignore demands of miners' convention and announce and declare that they will strike for it.

FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1904.

Detailed report of the coke trade for the week ending Saturday, March 26, shows a total of 33,636 ovens, of which 23,512 are active and 10,124 are idle, with an estimated production of 2,623 tons.

Shipments for the week aggregated 11,333 cars, as follows: To Pittsburgh, 2,771 cars, to points west, 6,541 cars; to points east, 1,471 cars. This was an increase of 1,833 cars over the week previous, most of the increase being in western shipments.

Prices are quoted at $1.95 for furnace coke, and from $2.25 to $2.50 for foundry coke.

The coke trade has experienced a decided boom and the number of active ovens is rapidly approaching the 20,000 mark. Upwards of 4,000 ovens have been fired in the last month. Shipments increased though there is still a shortage of cars.

Richard Huston's machine shop in New Haven is destroyed by fire, estimated at a loss of $2,500.

Henry Cole begins proceedings against his partners in the Leckrone Coke Company, John R. Carothers and Charles Leckrone, alleging that he has been deposed as general manager and not paid his salary.

W. C. Bishop organizes New Haven Baseball Club for the season. In the lineup are Francis, Bishop, Richey, Sterret, M. Thomas, E. Duggan, King, Marietta, Robbins, Whaley, Sneddon and Mason.

Four Directors and County Commissioners get together on question of how expense of caring for smallpox patients shall be divided. The Post Board agrees to pay all expenses except doctor's bills, which the Commissioners will stand.

Churches vote on question of retention of Reed Smoot, the Mormon, in the Senate. The result is almost unanimous for his removal.

APRIL 1.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slush."

The First of April is a common day of ordinary size and consistency though somewhat damper than the average. It is not important historically or economically and the banks do not close when it comes—which proves its insignificance more vividly than any other statement.

However, the First of April is noted in this country as a holiday. It is a day upon which many men and boys give their brains a day off and do not work at all. The output of practical jokes on April First is greater than that of all other days put together.

On three hundred and sixty-four days of every year the small boy's ambition is to become President of the United States. But on the 26th day, which is April First, his ambition is to induce some old gentleman to pick up a hot penny which has been laid on the sidewalk by the pavement with a pair of pliers.

For eleven months and twenty-nine days, the ambition of our newspaper is to prove that the opposing party is composed entirely of fools and that the competing newspaper has only four paid up subscribers. But on the last day of the year, which is April 1, the ambition of the newspaper is to print a story which will induce several thousand people to go down to the scene of the horrible collision produced when Fifth avenue ran into Main street.

Most of the time the eminent financier devotes his energies to separating the public from its money by strictly legal and proper methods. But on April First, he forgets to look at the tickler for hours at a time while arranging a brick under a hat, with the aid of the office boy, in such a manner as to induce the head bookkeeper to kick his great toe half way through the brick.

April First is devoted exclusively to the production of things which are not what they seem. For this reason the news should compel the Panama toll pranks of our political platforms to be published on April First and this day should also be reserved for the issuing of a large number of very attractive stocks and bonds backed by a few speckled vests and an air of great honesty and benevolence on the part of the issuers.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Harry Parker arrived home Friday evening from a month's trip to Florida.

DIRE DISTRESS
It is Near at Hand to Hundreds of Connelleville Residents.

Don't neglect an aching back, for it is the kidneys crying for help. Backache is often the kidneys' cry for help. Neglecting the kidneys will mean that urinary troubles may follow.

Or danger of worse kidney trouble. Here's Connelleville testimony. Mr. Gladie Knight, 401 Franklin avenue, Connelleville, Pa., says: "For years I was almost crippled with my back and couldn't find a remedy that would help me. The pains across my loins seemed to burn like iron and I finally lost strength and was tired all the time. I could hardly get around the house to do my work. I had dizzy spells and headaches and my sight blurred. I came settled on my kidneys and made the kidneys my special study. I was simply miserable with kidney trouble, but I found a cure when I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. Two boxes made me well and I have been free from kidney trouble since."

Price 50c. Get it at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Dr. Knight had. Foster-McAlhurn Co. Props. Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Look to Your Plumbing.
You know what happens in a house in which the plumbing is in poor condition—everybody in the house is liable to contract typhoid or some other fever. The digestive organs perform the same functions in the human body as the plumbing does for the house, and they should be kept in first class condition at all times. If you have any trouble with your digestion take Chamberlain's Tablets and you are certain to get quick relief. For sale by all druggists.—Adv.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 1.—Miss Matilda Blume, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Blume of Connelleville, and Olga Long, son of Mrs. Martha Long were married at 8:30 o'clock last evening in the United Brethren Church by Rev. Harper the pastor. The attendants were Miss Flossie Long, a sister of the groom, and Robert Moran of Dickerson Run.

A supper was served at the home of the groom. Miss Blume was in training at the Memorial Hospital and left to get married. Mr. Long is employed at Standard. The young people had expected to have a very quiet wedding and no invitations were sent out, but friends made it a very quiet affair. As Miss Blume came from her home here a number of guests from the hospital met her at the entrance of town and escorted her to the church where a large congregation had been gathered from over town by friends both to be there to witness the ceremony.

Miss Collin May McConnell and Ernest Stoner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stoner of Stauffer, were married at the McConnell country home near the Mud School House yesterday by Rev. Melvin C. Clemence, pastor of the Evangelical Church at Stauffer. About fifty guests were present. A nice dinner was served.

Miss Mary O'Donnell left yesterday for Pittsburg where she will make her home. She was accompanied by Miss Benedict.

Justice of the Peace L. S. Rhodes called at Lattrobe and Ligonier yesterday.

Mrs. Will C. Murphy is staying with Mrs. Leona Jordan at the Pleasant Valley Hotel. Mrs. Jordan is very ill from an abscess in her head.

Miss Eva Platter entertained her fellow members of the J. O. C. Class of the Methodist Episcopal Church at her church street home last evening. Very nice refreshments were served.

Mrs. May Crum and Miss Lou Hatfield have returned home from a visit paid to Ligonier.

Mrs. Weaver of Madison, is the guest of Mrs. Kate Ruth.

Miss Emma Walker was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hemminger of Scottsdale yesterday.

Clark Felner, who will play at the Cox Theatre the last three days of this week, in the guest of his sister, Mrs. A. M. Crosby.

CATARH VICTIMS
Use Hyomel—You Breathe It. It's the right-to-the-point remedy not only for catarrh, but for head colds, sniffles, bronchitis, laryngitis or croup of children. You breathe it—no stomach dosing.

You will like Hyomel. It not only gives instant and lasting relief, but is entirely harmless, pleasant to use, and economical. Money refunded by A. A. Clarke if you are not benefited.

Hyomel is a combination of antiseptic oils that mixes with the air and quickly reaches the irritated and inflamed membrane of the nose. It's sure and safe healing begins immediately—you feel better at once.

If suffering from watery eyes, husky voice, discharge from the nose, or that choked-up feeling, try Hyomel now—today. All druggists sell it. Ask for the complete outfit—$1.10 also.—Adv.

CONFLUENCE.

CONFLUENCE, April 1.—The banquet of the members and friends of the Knights of the Macabees last evening was a great success and was the leading event of the current social season. It was attended by about 200 guests and excellent speeches were made. The Macabees is the leading fraternal and insurance organization in this part of the county and its roster contains the names of nearly all the prominent men.

Special meetings are still in progress each evening at the Rapid Club on the West Side. Rev. F. J. Sigmund is pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tomlin of the West Side have returned from a few days' visit with friends in Homestead and Pittsburg.

J. L. Sellers was a business visitor to the county seat Monday.

Miss Bertha Karyl was a visitor in Connelleville.

W. W. Frazer, a Baltimore and Ohio brakeman who has been off duty for some time, was here on Tuesday in Connelleville consulting a throat specialist.

The Methodist Episcopal Sunday school of Connelleville was an excellent success service.

Dr. C. A. Richter, the dentist who has been unable to follow his profession, is again resuming his practice.

Mrs. J. L. Burnworth and little son Eugene who have been visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Gorbard for a week have returned to their home at Johnson Chapel.

The story of a Missed Life.
A marvelous story of a missed life which has been redeemed in time to do great good will be told by John Tyler next Sunday afternoon at Connelleville. This is the story of a student, college educated, reared in an old Virginia mansion, disappointed a fortune, six times around the world as a tramp, down to the lowliest depths of vice in the slums of cities, converted and moved through the power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. You can't afford to miss hearing it.—Adv.

MAY IRWIN.
"Oh! I wish some power the little girl us to see ourselves as others see us."

Little did Bobbie Burns think when he wrote those lines that some day there would be such a power given us by Edison.

Miss May Irwin who will appear at the Soisson Theatre Thursday night, April 2 in Catherine Cushing's farce, "Widow by Proxy," says of the value of motion pictures as an adjunct to proper acting:

"I think that every actor or actress however famous or successful, could learn a great deal by having her picture taken by the movies and then have the reel shown to her."

"I never have been so sensitive because I am stout, but when I saw myself in the pictures, oh, well, I'm glad that I had lost twenty-four pounds before the pictures were taken."

Woman Is As Old As She Looks
No woman wants to look old. Many in their effort to look youthful resort to the "beauty doctor's" prescriptions. The result is that they visit the wrong dispensary in the drug store. Beauty depends upon health. Wrinkles, sleepless nights, headaches, pale, discolored, irregular skin, loss of vitality, are all signs of a declining system. To obtain the appearance of youth you must retain health. Instead of lotions, powders and paints, ask your druggist for

DR. PIERCE'S Favorite Prescription
This famous medicine strikes at the very root of those enemies of your youthful appearance. It makes you not only look young, but feel young. Your druggist can supply you in liquid or tablet form, or send you one-out-at-once to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and the great medicine, Dr. Pierce's, and this one will be mailed you.

CLAIM NEW RATES WOULD BE HARDSHIP UPON THE SHIPPERS

Cancellation of the Joint Rate is Called Discrimination.

TERMINAL COSTS INCREASED

Monongahela Connecting Railroad and Shippers Enter Separate Complaint to Commission Against Proposed Suspension of Joint Rates.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Thousands of shippers and receivers of freight in Pennsylvania are awaiting with anxiety the outcome of the complaint of the Monongahela Connecting Railroad of Pittsburgh, and the shippers along its lines made last week to the State Public Service Commission, asking that the trunk lines be prohibited from discontinuing the joint rates with this terminal road. If the joint rates are cancelled it means that the shipper via the Monongahela Connecting Railroad will have to pay an additional freight charge of 1/4 to 1/2 of a cent per hundred weight, or ten to fifteen cents per ton on all freight shipped or received by them over the lines of the road. All shippers throughout the state making use of terminal roads would likewise be affected and are therefore deeply interested in the outcome of this complaint.

The whole situation was brought about through an opinion or suggestion made to the railroads of the United States by Commissioner James H. Keenan of the Interstate Commerce Commission to the effect that if the trunk lines hope to get permission to make a 5 per cent horizontal increase in rates they must first cancel all joint traffic arrangements with the so-called industrial or terminal or "tap" line roads and thereby effect a saving of many millions of dollars a year. The opinion in effect declared that such roads are not railroads. The Monongahela Connecting Railroad at once took exception and is now contesting this opinion and undertaking to show the Interstate Commerce Commission that it is a bona fide railroad in every sense of the word, and that to permit the trunk lines to cancel joint rates with it would be to discriminate against the shippers it serves by making them pay additional for their service, whereas shippers situated directly on a trunk line would continue to enjoy the flat Pittsburgh rate on all business interchanged between trunk lines.

Taking Commissioner Keenan's tip the railroads have announced their intention of cancelling these joint rates not only on laterals, but on intra-state business as well. It is because of the latter being included that the question was brought before the State Commission on complaint of the Monongahela Connecting Railroad and its shippers.

In proof of its contention that it is a real railroad and a user of main line tracks for the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, the Monongahela Connecting Railroad is showing both the State and Interstate Commissions that it was originally built to connect up the three powerful trunk line systems entering Pittsburgh, namely, the Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie (New York Central system) and the Baltimore and Ohio, and that it is today the only connection among these three systems which enables the many plants, merchants and individuals along its lines to ship and receive freight at will over any one or all three of these principal trunk lines at the flat Pittsburgh rate.

The Monongahela Connecting Railroad was chartered and built in 1885 and has lines for several miles along both the north and south banks of the Monongahela River with a bridge between. It is almost in the heart of the city of Pittsburgh and is the most crowded industrial center. The road was chartered and built by the owners of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company at the urgent solicitation of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, which at that time was entering the city on the south bank of the river to compete with the Pennsylvania for some of the even then enormous business of the mills and factories. The construction of the Monongahela Connecting Railroad enabled the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie to get across to the north bank of the river and get its share of the business there. When upon the construction of the road, the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie people agreed to make a traffic contract with the venture, so that the latter would get a portion of the flat rate for its service. This was done and the other railroads were quick to fall in line with the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie in offering the road a share of the flat rate for the switching services, and the business increased until last year, the Monongahela Connecting Railroad Company handled nearly 700,000 tons, outside of all consignments to the Jones & Laughlin Company. That is more than ten other railroads of between 50 and 100 miles in length handle in a year.

Until 1899 the only business the Monongahela Company had on the north side of the Monongahela River were two little furnaces of Laughlin and Company, but at the behest of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie, the tracks were extended along the river banks to the other industries. By 1905 it had reached all those industries which had only the service of the Baltimore and Ohio, and this arrangement gave them the open door to all the roads. The Jones & Laughlin furnaces, coke ovens and works now on the north bank were not started until twelve years after the road was built.

The Monongahela Connecting Railroad has a total of 35 miles of tracks and seven team sidings and that does not include the private sidings of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company nor those of any of the other industries located along its lines. The latter concern represents the ownership of the railroad, but a decision of the United States Supreme Court made years ago declared a railroad was not a railroad by its ownership, but only when it performed a public service. That is what is claimed for the Monongahela Connecting Railroad.

This road is run in exactly the same way as any well organized railroad. It has 35 locomotives, its own round houses, shops and all the rest and is run according to printed schedules. The idea that the allowance which it receives for terminal services is in the nature of a gift is wrong. It shows that the most expensive work in railroad and earns a small return on the investment.

Under the tariff plans filed by the railroads on the strength of the Interstate Commerce Commission opinion to take effect April 1, the absorption of the switching charges of the Monongahela company will have been cancelled. If the action of the railroads is allowed to stand, all traffic assigned to industries not on the main lines will be left, subject to points, with an additional terminal charge to be paid by the shipper over and above the flat rate before he can have the car at its destination. This will be objected to by thousands of shippers all over the state and prompt to lead to a legal battle of no little importance to the shippers of Pennsylvania.

Tragedy of Cleaning Our Shoes
In America as I saw it, Mrs. Alice Twiddle, writing of our home life, says:

"But home life—where is it? This poor man who pays so heavily for everything cannot even get his boots blackened at home, and he has to go into the streets to the nearest 'shoe' for the purpose. At the street corners of every town are high, stinging looking chairs under an awning, and there the men—yes, and women, too—sit solemnly, with a foot reposing on each leg rest placed there for the purpose, and while they read their morning papers a dark brown boot for fivepence or black one for twopence halfpenny. Even in hotels it is difficult to get boots cleaned, and they have to be put on dirty and worn by their owner down to the boot room, where, in the larger hotels, they are now kind enough to have a separate department for ladies. 'Tis the land of luxury, but not of comfort. Those little comforts, which to us in England are the necessities of life, are not to be found in America. Why? Because there are few people to render service."

Won in Losing.
She wanted to do some shopping and, as is the custom of wives, left the house for more money. She went to her husband and asked for the loan of a sovereign.

"But you'll never pay me back," protested the husband. "I've lent you money before."

"I'll but you 2 shillings I pay you in a month," said the wife.

"Right," said the husband, leaping at this sporting offer.

The month passed. One morning the wife came sorrowfully to her husband. "Dear, I've lost that bet. Here's your 2 shillings."—Manchester Guardian.

A President in Shirt Sleeves.
The Swiss president's name—nothing status has given rise to many stories. Edmund D'Auvergne, visiting the government buildings at Bern, noticed the word "Bundespräsident" (president of the confederation) inscribed over an inconspicuous door, just as you might see the word "Cashier" or "Director" on a building. He called to mind how an important English railway contractor once knocked at this door and was answered by a man in shirt sleeves, whom he took to be a clerk. It was the president himself. In Sir Horace Rumbold's time (the sixties) the story was that a diplomat, calling at the president's private abode, was admitted by a lady with tucked up sleeves and soap suds added arms—Mme. la Presidente straight from the wash-tub.—London Standard.

Pony Express Riders.
In the days of the pony express many wonderful, long rides were made by those engaged in carrying the mails through dangerous country. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) made a round trip of 384 miles without a rest except to change horses and take of one meal. It is recorded that Robert H. Husman (Pony Bob) rode 390 miles at one stretch. When the pony express ceased to exist Husman became a Wells Fargo messenger, riding 100 miles every twenty-four hours, being ten hours on the road. Jack Kestley, a pony express rider, is credited with 340 miles in thirty-one hours, and Jim Moore, another rider, is said to have covered 280 miles in fourteen hours and forty-six minutes.—New York Sun.

Naming the Picture.
The artist was of the impressionist school. He had just given the last touches to a purple and blue canvas when his wife came into the studio. "My dear," said he, "this is the landscape I wanted you to suggest a title for."

"Why not call it 'Home'?" she said after a long look.

"Home? Why?"

"Because there's no place like it," she replied meekly.—Glasgow Times.

Easy to Identify.
"I was going down the street the other day," the fellow said, "and I met a little boy crying. He was a miserable object and seemed to be suffering greatly. So I stopped and spoke to him."

"What's the matter, son?" says I.

"A b-b-big boy hit me," he sobbed.

"Well, that's a shame. You tell me who the big boy was and I'll give him a talking to that he won't forget."

"It was Mr. Simpkins' boy," answered the abused youngster with a show of interest. "He's down there with all those other kids."

"Which one of that crowd is he?" "You kin tell easy enough. He's the one with the black eye an' the bloody nose, an' he's cryin' too!"

The MAIL of the FOREST

A Romance of St. Clair's Defeat
By RANDALL PARRISH
ILLUSTRATED BY D. J. LAVIN
Copyright A.C. McCallure & Co., 1913

What had frightened the fellow so? What had brought that look of insane terror into his eyes? It was as if he stared at a ghost, the very sight of which had caused him to stagger with a nervous, and crept forward along the passage, feeling blindly in advance with one outstretched hand, until it came in contact with the man's figure. He lay full length on the tunnel floor, and I had to find my way over him to reach his head. It was difficult to reach him, to place my fingers against his flesh. The memory of those snarling, wolfish lips, and that yellow skin, caused me to shrink from direct contact. Yet I must assure myself, I could not leave the man lying there, possibly to recover consciousness and do injury. Of one thing I was assured—this French negro could be no friend.

With clenched teeth, I touched the coarse hair with my fingers; then the forehead. The flesh retained some warmth; yet the feeling was not natural—it seemed lifeless. For the instant this appeared impossible. Why, he did it himself; he crashed his own skull against the slab. Yet I could not make the affair seem real, or probable. And a negro! I had seen few of the race, but had always been told they were of thick skull; but if this man was actually dead, his head must have been smashed like an egg-shell. And it was—I found the gash a woman's later, the jagged edges of bone. The fellow was dead, stone dead; there was no heat to his head, no throb to his pulse. Still dazed by the discovery, I ran my fingers along the roof overhead, hoping to find something there which would account for the mystery. No dust surface could ever have jabbled that wound. Ah! I felt the sharp point of a stake protruding between the logs. The poor fellow had struck that with sufficient force to penetrate the brain.

I conquered my abhorrence, and searched him, finding tobacco, a knife—a ugly weapon—flint and steel, a few coins, and some powder and rifle balls. There were no pistol bullets, and the thought occurred to me that the smaller weapon probably did not belong to him; he had appropriated it elsewhere. I crept about, and across the body, searching for it in vain, but I found the rifle, and took time to test its flint, and load it.

I was still engaged at this task, blindly feeling about in the dark for everything needed, and always conscious of that dead body beside me, when I suddenly detected smoke—not the puff of powder which still clung to the passage, but the acrid, pungent odor of burning wood. Even as I began to breathe the fumes, the increased intensity; the narrow tunnel filling rapidly with the smoke waves, and setting me to coughing. I realized at once what had happened. Mademoiselle's word of warning coming back to mind—they were burning the cabin, and through some opening the smoke was being swept down into the underground passage. If there were no outlet, no way by which it could escape again to the open air, I must die there! That black boja shocked and suffocated. I might live there forever behind this hideous negro, lie there until our bones rotted, and we also became earth. The horror of the thought brought me to my knees. Already the air was stifling, my lungs laboring heavily for breath as the smoke clouds filled the passage. Only as I bent my nostrils close against the earthen floor could I find life-giving air.

"Now Push Yourself Down, Mademoiselle! I Say You Must!"

Even in my terror I clung to the negro's rifle desperately. The entrance leading forth into the cave-cellar must be closed, or the smoke cloud would never be so dense and suffocating. To open it might require strength, the blows of the gun stock. If I retained power to bend my way through I must hurry. Already I felt my head reel dizzily, my open lips gulping for air. I crept forward recklessly in the dark, snatching my body against the flames of the tunnel, actually feeling the thickening smoke swirl about me in dense clouds. I gasped for breath, and drew a bit of cloth about nose and mouth in slight protection. I was panic-stricken, overcome by sudden horror, yet some nature within compelled me to struggle on. Suddenly I came to a body by the lengthwise of the passage, the head to the south. This new discovery was a shock, yet seemed to affect me little. I was too intent on my own escape to be halted by a dead man; to even think what it meant, or how the fellow came to be there. To me, at that instant, he was but an obstacle, blocking my progress.

I crawled over him, as though he was no more than a stone in the path, yet as one hand came down in the dark on the upturned face, I experienced a sudden thrill—the flesh was warm, the man lived. Barely had my numbed mind grasped this helplessly, when my rifle barrel, thrust before me, struck the end of the passage, the faint sound of contact signifying wood. Not three feet extended between the man's head and this barrier which blocked us from the outside air. Desperate, half crazed indeed, not only by my own situation, but also by the memory of those bodies behind in the dark tunnel, I found some loose room in the small space, and fumbled madly about for some latch. The surface was of wood, roughly faced, but smooth, save for what might be a handle in the middle, a mere strip, burred to give finger-hold. I pulled at this in vain; then pushed with my shoulder against the oak, but the wood held firm. Weak as I was, and in so cramped a position, I could bring to bear but small strength. To batter the door down was the only hope left; no matter what noise resulted, or the possibility of capture by the savages, I could not lie there and choke to death in that place of horror. Better any danger than such a fate. I drew back and struck, the power of fear giving strength to my arm. Again and again I drove the iron-bound rifle stock against the hard oak. I left the center and attacked the sides, feeling the wood give slightly. Encouraged by this I redoubled my efforts, centralizing my blows on one spot, until certain the tightly jammed door was being driven from the groove. It was not and stifling; the perspiration streamed from me; the smoke was suffocating, deadly. I gasped and choked, my head swam with dizziness. I felt my strength ebbing away; despair clutched me. Yet I struck—no longer with clear intent, but automatically, driving the heavy gun butt against the slowly yielding wood, with every pound of strength I had left. It seemed as if I had struck my last blow—I believe now I had; I believe my body fell with it—I cannot remember clearly—only I know the wood gave way, and I fell forward into light and air, my face without, my body still in the tunnel.

Merciful mother! How I gulped in those first refreshing breaths; how the clogged lungs rejoiced. It seemed as if I could never get enough. I could hardly detect objects, although I lifted my head, and sought to gaze about, for my eyes were blinded by so suddenly emerging into the bright light after those hours of darkness. The puff of smoke swept over me, and poured out through the open door of the cellar. As strength and purpose came back I sat up, and began to perceive my surroundings. A glimpse of blue sky, and sounding away, a melody of discordant cries came thrumming to my ears. These served to restore my wandering senses. The Indians were still on the island; some might be close enough at hand to observe that column of smoke pouring forth from that cellar door, and wonder how it came there. Yet there was nothing I could do but remain hidden; to venture into the open would only expose me to greater danger. I glanced back into the tunnel, suddenly remembering the man who still lived. If he were out, the door might be forced back into place again, that volume of smoke suppressed.

I refastened the cloth across my face, and crept back into the tunnel until I was able to grip the fellow's arms. He was a large man, clothed as a white; I even thought I felt brail on his sleeves; and, as I drew him toward me by a mighty effort, the light streaming in revealed a red jacket.

CHAPTER XV.

I Meet My Double. The probability that the man was a British officer, whose life depended on his exertions, nerved me anew. No matter who he might prove to be, whether friend or foe, he was of my race and blood, and evidently the victim of treacherous attack. First of all I must get him out of that stifling hole into pure air, and discover the nature of his injuries. It was no easy task, dragging the heavy body through the narrow entrance, and across the dislodged floor. It had to be accomplished by sheer strength of arm, for I worked on my knees, choked by the foul atmosphere, almost blinded by the smoke, and unable to find purchase. Yet foot by foot I won, until, exhausted by the effort, I hauled the limp form free of the barrier, and against the side wall of the cellar. I leaned against the wall as the waves of smoke thinned, and drifted out through the open door. At least there was but a thin vapor showing against the blue expanse of sky. It occurred to me the blue was shading into gray, as if approaching twilight. I retained no sense of time; so much had occurred I felt I had been confined for hours in that tunnel; when I first emerged and perceived light I could scarcely realize that it was yet day; that all had occurred—the fight in the cabin, my rescue, the horrors of the tunnel—within so short a space. There suddenly swept over me the fresh memory of it all; I saw the faces, heard the voices. And they were dead, these men I had accompanied; with them had gone the long journey, some quickly, mercifully, and Brady in the agony of torture. How it nauseated me! The swift reaction leaving me sobbing like a child, my hands pressed over my eyes. All at once I expected the full horror, and broke down as weak as a babe. I remember now how my knees shook, so that I sank down to the earth floor; and how I prayed, my voice a mere senseless murmur, yet, no doubt, clear enough to God's ears, clear enough to me.

I Fell Forward Into Light Air.

conviction me that the man was sitting up, his back against the wall. "I don't know who you are, friend," he called out heartily, "only you look to be white. By any luck do you speak English?" "Not much of anything else," I answered, endeavoring to discover his features. "I'm of the blood."

"Ay! With a colonial tinge to it, unless my ears lie. Is that the story? So then what in God's name are you doing here?"

I could not take the measure of the fellow; his face was indistinct in the shadows, but there was a reckless ring of good-fellowship in his voice which inspired me to frankness. "I came this way with a message for the Wyandots. I belong to the Garrison of Fort Harmer."

"An officer?"

"Holy smoke, man, but you certainly stumbled into a hornet's nest. Didn't you know all the northwest tribes have declared war? That it has actual begun?"

"There is a touch of humor to your tale, my friend," he said slowly, "although I doubt if you will be able to perceive it. Girty and Hamilton may have had reasons of their own for a bit of blysp, and they failed to consult me. But as for this Wa-pa-tee-tah, that chance to be my business; although just now, and in the presence of the enemy, we will let the discussion go. Diplomacy never reveals its cards, and I have become more diplomatic than soldier. What am I then—a prisoner?"

I saw him now clearly, and he must have got his first fair glimpse of me, for he stared at my face in startled surprise that, for the moment, held him dumb. It was like looking at his own reflection in a glass—the eyes, the hair, the nose, the contour of the face, the massive figure, all alike the counterpart of my own. I would not have believed, except for the witness of my own eyes, that such similarity was possible. Even though fortified with sudden impression that this was the man for whom mademoiselle had mistaken me, the actual resemblance was so startling, as to leave me voiceless. We would have passed for each other anywhere, and yet as I stared at him, differing his eyes fairly, I perceived a difference, faint, elusive, yet noticeable enough—his skin showed marks of disintegration; there was a peculiar luster to his mouth, and he must be older than I by five years.

mind seemed to grip all this in a flash, before his voice broke the silence. "Odds life, man! and what's this?" he roared. "Some play acting, or a dream? Never before did I know I was born a twin! Who are you?"

"The look on his face, as if he half suspected he saw a ghost, made me smile."

"My name is Hayward—Joseph Hayward."

He gasped for breath, his eyes fairly protruding, as he staggered to his feet. "What! Say that again!"

I had full control of myself now, rather enjoying his consternation. "I am Joseph Hayward," I answered with grave deliberation. "An ensign in the United States army, and a native of Maryland."

"Well, I be hanged! Say; do you know that's my name also? Is this some shabby joke?"

"There was a gleam of anger in his eyes, a threat. I leaned on my rifle, and looked him in the face."

"I was better prepared for this meeting than you," I said, "for I happen to know who you are. It's an odd thing, our resemblance, and the similarity of names, but I was told about you some time ago."

"By whom?"

"Mademoiselle D'Auway."

"Who? I never met—oh, her!" with a quick laugh, "you mean the Wyandot missionary?"

"I mean the daughter of Captain D'Auway," I returned with some sternness. "The man the Indians call 'Wa-pa-tee-tah.' She mistook me for you."

"And was not very nice about it? I imagine—the little vixen will scarce give me a word."

"Possibly with reason."

"She told you so? She might be in better business than advertising my delinquencies among enemies. The girl has just enough white blood in her to make her set the foot."

"We may differ about that. Anyhow I advise you to hold your tongue. What I am interested in learning now is—who killed her father?"

He started back, bracing himself against the wall.

"Her father! D'Auway! Is he dead then?"

He was not acting; the surprise was real; the expression of his eyes convinced me.

"You had no connection with the murder?"

"I! Good Lord, no! I know nothing, man—even how I came to be here. I woke up just now, lying in this corner with my face to the wall, every bone in my body aching. When I finally managed to roll over, I got glimpse of you there at the entrance, and sang out. I don't even feel certain who I am, let alone what I may have been up to."

"But surely you recall something," I insisted.

"Well," puzzled, "not much. See here, I'm willing enough to tell you all I know. Let's sit down; my head spins around like a top."

CHAPTER XVI.

I Hold a Prisoner. He dropped back against the wall, but much of my old strength had returned, and I remained standing, leaning on my rifle. The man continued to stare up at me as if half doubting his own eyesight.

"Well," I said at last, growing tired of his silence. "You have my story—or, at least, a good part of it—and now it would seem the proper time for me to hear yours. Once we understand each other we will know better how to proceed."

He pressed his hands against his head in an endeavor to think. "I was in there, unconscious and alone?"

"No, not alone; there was a yellow-faced negro with you—a French mongrel, if I know the breed. He's there yet—dead; and I want to know the story."

"Oh, ay! I begin to get the straight of this, at least, as far as I am concerned. 'Not that it is altogether clear, but you furnish a clue; perhaps if we put the ends together we may make a tale. A French negro, hey! I would likely be the Kaskaskia half-breed, a transplanted whistled dog. But how ever did he come to be here?' Ay! I have it! The fellow must have trailed me from the council at Sandusky, suspecting I sought D'Auway; there was hate between them."

"Then 't is likely he killed the man," "No doubt of it, if he really be killed. I listen to what I know; in truth it is not much other than rumor. D'Auway had the fellow lashed by Wyandot squaws for some dirty trick, and Picard—that's his name—swore vengeance. Saint Denis! That was a year ago and Picard has ever since been in his own country. 'T was the coming of war that brought him back. I thought I saw him at Sandusky as we held council there, but his presence was nothing to me."

"No quarrel with you, then?"

"No! I saw him whipped; he was like a snarling cur. Listen, and I'll tell all I know. I am not proud of my job, understand, but out here in the wilderness, we work under a double board, and the other secret. 'T is poor work for a soldier, but there's no help for it, except to resign, and then some one else would turn the trick. You know the game we play—our countries at peace, this land formally surrendered to you Americans, and yet there comes to us—to Hamilton—private instructions to retard settlement, and retain our military posts. Lord knows what the ministry means, what they hope to gain by delay; we are only pawns in the game being played, yet what English says, we do. 'Tet how there is only one weapon—left to our hands—the savages. We cannot fight you openly, much as we might prefer, but if we can keep the Indian tribes hostile, we can hold back your settlements to the Ohio, until England can set openly. You know all this?"

Call and See This Book

Mere words cannot describe it—an illustration such as is herein presented cannot portray its beauties. The French would call it an "Edition de Luxe." We have no phrase so fitting. It is indeed a superlative edition—a book of surpassing elegance—the grand triumph of art in magnificent tropical colorings, interwoven with word pictures none the less artistic.

As the size of your thumb compares with your hand, so this illustration compares with the size of the book.

lay hand on her in evil. Where did you meet the girl?"

"Port Harmer."

"What! In surprise. 'She got so far?' She ventured there? What was her purpose, think you?"

"Of that I know nothing, yet it was there we met first, and she mistook me for you. Go on; I would hear the rest of your tale; it is growing dark."

"The rest is short enough, but the girl's actions puzzle me. Once we were rid of her, the father had to be attended to. 'T was no easy task, for D'Auway was a chief, and quick to quarrel. 'T is small odds now how the trick was played, but I knew of this cabin, and once here I held him prisoner, while Hamilton used his disappearance as a whip to drive the Wyandots to war."

"He spread the rumor then that D'Auway was captured or killed by Americans, knowing what had occurred?"

"Partly that," with a chuckle. "He knew not where the man was, only that I had him safe." "And by means of this he you deliberately plotted to ravage the frontier with Indian outrage," I exclaimed indignantly. "to turn loose a horde of savages against unprotected settlements, to kill women and children, 'T is an act of cold-blooded murder you confess."

"Nay, not so fast, friend," his eyes hardening with anger. "'T was war; we obeyed the orders that came from England; made use of the weapons at hand."

CONNELLSVILLE STORE.

Exceptional Advantages for Women with a Preference for Wright-Metzler Clothes:

Suits Coats Dresses Waists

—the advantage of the biggest-in-town collections to choose from; the advantage of variety, which takes in everything new and staple on one hand and which goes, on the other, above and beyond the best and prettiest shown in other stores. The advantages of fair-pricing, style-correctness and dependable quality.

"Style" is hard to define, but plain to observe. Here, our apparel for women and girls is style-perfect. The season's fashions are without garish and glitter, and without offense to refined tastes. A fine support to Wright-Metzler styles is QUALITY: dependable textures and tailoring; honest "inside" work and a finish that shows sincere endeavor.

All garments are ONE PRICE to everybody.

That price is as low as the thing can be sold for regularly. If, for business reasons, prices are changed during the season, everybody has equal advantage at the lower rates.

The position the store assumes in Fashionland is a responsible one, and to merit your trust in our ability to provide the right things keeps us constantly alert to the frequent changes and modifications continually going on.

Newer-Style Suits, Wraps,
Dresses, Waists and Lingerie Beautiful and Interesting

is the best proof that we can put before discriminating women to make clear this store's importance as a selling place of style-perfect, supreme-quality apparel. You who must have garments of the highest type will find ample provision here, and at prices emphatically less than are charged in city stores dealing in "exclusive" modes. The finer garments are one-of-a-kind and not re-ordered for stock when sold. The more staple things are different from the modes other stores show.

Whatever your preference, you'll find a broader variety to choose from at Wright-Metzler's. Garments that may require alterations should be selected NOW—to insure their readiness for Easter wear.

Ten Years Ago

in quarters less than half the size of the present floor space, Wright-Metzler Company began the selling of good goods in Connellsville. The beginning was small, just as the acorn from which an oak tree starts is small, but the store had grit and honesty of purpose behind it and sound business principles underlying it.

So it grew and is still growing.
It grew in size, in service-giving, in usefulness to a community;
It grew into a necessity of the people and into their confidence.
Its roots were "quality" goods, fashionable, beautiful, dependable goods—full measure at a fair price and ONE price to all.

An advertisement outlining the policy of this store, published in this newspaper ten years ago, said, among other straight-from-the-shoulder things,

"Never a word, syllable or line, figure or price will appear in any of our advertisements but are facts, fully and carefully substantiated by the goods in our store."

The advertisement was drafted by Mr. F. W. Wright speaking to the people of Connellsville, and speaking for the Wright-Metzler store.
And, although there were some people who shook their heads and "couldn't" exactly see where the town had room for more stores, "fully and carefully substantiated by the goods" won for Wright-Metzler's the enviable position it occupies today.
Connellsville's biggest, best, most modern selling place of safe quality to fine merchandise at fair prices to all alike.

Starting Monday, April 6th,
Wright-Metzler Company
Will Begin a
10th Anniversary Sale

which you can take our word for it will be a sale of greater importance to Connellsville and its pocket-book than any formerly staged here or hereabouts.
It will be a sale of staple to finest quality in-season merchandise from all over the store—goods of spring styles and spring newness, and in full varieties, at very low prices. The sale comes at a time to supply spring apparel before Easter at prices common at the END of a season. Later papers will have the full story of what may be called, without exaggeration, Wright-Metzler's and Connellsville's most important sale.

Wright-Metzler Co.

SMITHFIELD.

SMITHFIELD, April 1.—The Ladies Progressive Club met at the home of Mrs. Walter Bailey Friday evening. After transacting the regular business an interesting program was carried out. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. E. Conolly on Friday, April 3.

G. A. Feather was in Pittsburg on Monday.

H. P. Cross of Ruble was a borough business visitor Monday.

The Chatham Concert Company departed for Musontown Monday where they gave an entertainment Monday evening.

Frank A. Mitchell who was assaulted and robbed near Brownsville, is in a serious condition at his home in the Brown & Hammett addition here. Brucapela has developed from the wound in his head and he has about an even chance to recover.

The Smithfield district Sunday schools will convene here in the Presbyterian Church Saturday, April 4 in an all day session.

The churches will hold a union temperance meeting in the Baptist Church Sunday, April 5. Reverend Tinsley of Uniontown will address the meeting.

Expensive Hats

Reproduced in $5,
$7.50 and $10 Millinery

Smart, splendid effects, very stylish! Copied in less expensive materials—where the bare cost of materials in the original is great—but the same lines, the same becomingness, the same charm and refinement.

And these copies, in $5, $7.50 and $10 hats in nowise conflict with Wright-Metzler modes for which we ask more money.

Nor do they infringe on our exclusive creations of a very high order.

Wright-Metzler
$5 to $10 Hats

really form a little shop of good-looking, well-chosen expertly-made millinery.

—And this collection is distinctly ahead in newer ideas, newer shapes, newer braids, trimmings and colorings.

Newer Styles in:

BOW HATS

—the ribbons of moire, plain silk or velvet, standing straight up, or slanting. The modes are new and likeable; the ribbons good and the bows full and flaring—the vogue at this instant.

THE SHOE POLISH HAT

—not the name of a shape, but of the finish of a split braid; a regular polished effect which adds a tone to both shape and trimmings—a softness and richness new to the season.

COLONIAL HATS AND SAILORS

—street hats to fall in love with. Prettier sailors than we've ever seen before—and trimmed in prettier flowers, ribbons and feathers than in past seasons.

Pompadour trimmed Colonials have sharp corners or softened lines—either style a good style, and wearable.

FLOWER HATS

—small, neat buds and foliage, or larger flowers—singly or in numbers, and draped around smart crowns or made to peep out from beneath or at the side, front or back.

THE WATTEAUX HAT

—the most distinctive style yet shown. Flat, with hardly a crown, and bandeaux trimmed with flowers, feathers, ribbon or ornaments. A Watteaux sets saucily at daring angles—a most becoming mode to certain faces and figures.
